

INTRODUCTION

On September 7, 1949, India's Department of Posts and Telegraphs introduced the inland postal card as an economical form of in-country communication. Using the print-free area adjacent to the postal indicium for advertising was a later development, first appearing June 5, 1975. A little over two years later, on October 31, 1977, the first of these with a malaria message – Fever! May be malaria. Take chloroquine tablets – was released. Numerous additional cards with a range of malaria messages have appeared since.

Aside from the malaria messages, which were printed in as many as 13 different languages or dialects for each message type, printing on the cards is in both English and Hindi. Prior to 2003, post offices received cards in vertical strips of at least 3 cards that could be separated via coarse rouletted connectors. Starting with cards issued in 2003, cards were delivered to post offices in panes of 4 (2 x 2) with much finer rouletting than previously.

Basic designs for the various cards to which malaria messages were added are as follow:

TYPE A. 15p tiger head: brown on cream; solid mid-line, 3 long and 1 short address lines.

TYPE B. 15p environment: brown on cream; lines as Type A; 6 boxes for post code.

TYPE N. 25p Gandhi: text is S.P.P. HYD - 2007.

TYPE O. 25p Gandhi: text is S.P.P. HYD - 2008.

The color of the cardstock varies from yellow to cream to beige, and various textures have been reported. Types A through G measure 140 x 88 mm, type H measures 140 x 90 mm, and types I through L measure 145 x 95 mm. The text above the broken line on types H through O reads DO NOT WRITE OR PRINT BELOW THIS LINE. Cards inscribed I.S.P. were printed by India Security Printers; those inscribed S.P.P. were printed by Security Printing Press, Hyderabad.

On the following pages the various message types are illustrated, translated and labeled to the extent known. Each is also referenced to the above card type used for the message, and the issue date for each card-message combination is provided.

Collectors seeking information about postal cards with messages other than those pertaining to malaria should obtain the handbook Indian Inland Post Cards Advertisements & Slogans prepared by Kotadia and Gandhi in 1994 and revised in 2000. For collectors using that handbook, the relevant numbers are cross-referenced here as K&G #.

The listing of inland postal cards on the following pages is presented in sequence of malaria message type and then alphabetic order of language/dialect in which the message occurs. An illustration and issue date are also given for each language/dialect in which the malaria message is found. Numbering for each card follows the example below. Each language/dialect has a two letter designation, being the first letter and next following consonant in the name.

PC 1 A - AS postal card language message card type

First day cancels were applied using stock philatelic counter devices with date adjusted as appropriate. The cancels are presented here alphabetically by city of use. For each cancel type, the dates and cards on which it was used are also provided. In general, cards with a given language/dialect were supplied only to those offices serving a significant population of speakers of that language/dialect.

No first day cachets have been reported.

Cards with first day cancels are presented chronologically, then by language/dialect of malaria message, and then by office. They are numbered in the sequence presented.

Numerous cards can be found with special event cancels. Those thus far reported are listed chronologically by cancellation date under OTHER USAGE.
